

First found by Klarissa Lawrence around 9:30 am. I saw it well for several minutes, then it flew off with all the other geese. It came back around 10 am with the other geese. There were maybe 5000 geese on the reservoir by noon. No obvious signs of captivity such as missing hallux, leg bands, or trimmed flight feathers.

Photo by Ben Sampson of Centennial, CO.